Mill Owners and Farm Organizations Take Opposite Sides as Climax of Row Impends.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—(AP)—With its active life threatened by simultaneous attacks from several quarters, the AAA slashed back today with a charge that its opposition was directed against the entire New Deal.

Chester C. Davis, farm administrator, asserted flatly to newspapermen that public utilities and other business organizations were lending their support to a drive by processors and distributors of farm commodities, and that attacks on the cotton processing tax were being used as a spearhead.

Other AAA officials agreed. They insisted that in protecting the AAA they were defending an outpost and that other phases of the Roosevelt program would be attacked subsequently if the drive on the AAA succeeded.

Meanwhile, cotton textile mill owners and southern farm organizations lined up on opposite sides, with Governor Eugene Talmadge, of Georgia, Continued in Page 3, Column 3.

Governor Talmadge Hits First Ball; Huge Crowd Establishes New Mark for Southern League.

By JIMMY JONES.

With the greatest opening day crowd in the history of Atlanta and the Southern league cheering in a mad, thunderous crescendo, the Atlanta Crackers reached something approaching an apogee of playing perfection yesterday to turn back the Knoxville Smokies, 9 to 0, behind Harry Kelley's flawless pitching in the season opener at Ponce de Leon park.

As if inspired by the presence of 18,671 persons (official paid attendance), a throng which smashed all past records for the city and the league, Kelley pitched coolly and effectively to shut out the visiting Smokies with a performance that was a masterpiece in itself.

From the moment that Major Jim Key tossed a spotless white baseball out to the field until the last man was out in the ninth and Kelley had been almost mobbed by the enthusiastic fans, it was one great triumph for Atlanta—one which established it as the leading baseball city of the league.

The crowd overflowed high upon the center-field bleachers and took up all the emergency seating sections. The league has never seen a crowd as large, saving in the Dixie series of 1931 at Birmingham, when 20,000 saw a game.

Kelley gave the Smokies only one hit, a single by Blithen the third, up until the ninth, when with two men out, he eased up momentarily and allowed two singles by Stebbins and Max Rosenfeld which dealt no damage.

Meanwhile the Crackers' bats were heating a vicious attack upon Climax Blithen, the warlike and weather-beaten veteran of the Knoxville staff, who essayed to pour cold water upon the celebration.

They reached him for three runs on four hits in the first and the attack reached a climax in the seventh when they drove him from the box after "Prince" Henry Oana had lifted the first home run of the season over the top of the left-field stands with Manager Eddie Moore and Dave Harris on base.

The Crackers' balance of power was displayed in three innings, each of which saw them blasting the old

Huge Trans-Pacific Air Line Pioneer Off for 2,400 Mile Flight.

ALAMEDA, Cal., April 16.—(AP)—Exactly on schedule, the big Clipper flying boat and its six-man crew left here today on a 2,400-mile flight to Honolulu to blaze the first leg of a commercial trans-Pacific airline to the Orient.

The Pan-American plane took off at 3:50:30 p. m. (5:50:30 central standard time), rose slowly from the water and headed toward its distant goal. Four hours later, the huge ship reported it was 564 miles out and was flying above the clouds as the sun set.

Four powerful motors, developing 2,800 horsepower, whirled the big propellers as several thousand spectators eagerly watched the start of the pioneering hop.

The six men of the Clipper's crew, captained by Edwin C. Musick, walked to the float and entered their craft. They wore natty blue uniforms and white caps.

Then Chief Pilot R. O. D. Sullivan opened the throttles and the craft turned slowly and headed out into the bay. Spray foamed from the sleek

Girl, 7, Drops Dead During Church Ritual

Practicing for the Holy Thursday procession at the Immaculate Conception church, Agnes Patricia Huey, 7 years old, was seized with a heart attack yesterday afternoon and dropped dead.

The child was to take part in the Holy Thursday ritual and with a number of other children was rehearsing the procession at the church. The attack was sudden and the child was dead when she arrived at a hospital. She was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Huey, of 980 Pulliam street, and the sister of Mary Eugenia Huey and J. H. and J. W. Huey.

Services will be held at 12:15 o'clock this afternoon at the Church of the Immaculate Conception and the Rev. Father Joseph Moylan will say mass. The place of interment will be announced by Sam Greenberg & Company.

A record crowd of 18,671 fans turned out for the opening baseball game of the Southern league season yesterday between Atlanta and Knoxville, setting an all-time league mark. TALMADGE FLAYS PROCESSING LEVY

Governor Says He Will Stump South Against U. S. Farm Program.

Georgia's governor yesterday militantly joined textile manufacturers in the movement to end the processing tax.

Governor Talmadge, terming the levy the "most damnable sales tax ever put on food and clothing," said he would stump the cotton belt against this and other features of the administration's farm program.

Long an opponent of the program, he said he would journey over the cotton belt soon and talk to farmers about "burning up wheat, plowing up cotton and corn and importing these products from foreign countries."

He charged the processing tax was stifling production and putting American people on relief.

Georgia's commission of agriculture, Tom Linder, entered the controversy, contending this state had paid $28,000,000 in processing levies in 18 months while it got back only $1,000,000 in rental benefits and parity payments.

To Make Survey of Own.

"I'm going to make a trip over the cotton belt pretty soon and talk to the farmers and the textile people about this damnable processing tax which is the highest sales tax ever inflicted on the American people for food and clothing," the governor said.

"In the words of the Washington people, I'm going to boondoggle a little bit. I have seen so much of their surveys I'm going to make one of my own."

"Boondoggle" is the relief administration's word for survey.

The governor added that he believed the processing tax is stifling American cotton, wheat and other farm products.

SENATE IN TENN. REJECTS REPEAL

Group Votes 21 to 11 To Retain 25-Year-Old Prohibition Measure.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 16.—(AP)—Tennessee's senate voted 21-11 today to keep the state's 25-year-old dry laws on the statute books by rejecting a local option liquor legalization bill, the revenue from which was designed for relief.

Under the proposal, an election would have to be held before liquor could be legalized in any community. Bars would have been banned.

Favoring passage of the bill, Senator Fletcher R. Morgan (Hamilton) said he once had been a prohibitionist, but "time has passed and I have had an opportunity to observe."

"Before prohibition, if you started out to see your best girl and had the smell of liquor on your breath, her old man would boot you off the place," he continued. "Now, if you haven't got a bottle you'd better not go."

"Tear down the prohibition statute and you place boys and girls in the gutter," countered Senator John R. Todd Jr. "I plead for the sake of the mothers, sons and daughters of this state to turn thumbs down on this measure."

The five republican members voted solidly against the bill, one of them, Senator Sam R. Howell, son of a Methodist clergyman, said its passage would mean "the damnation and ruin of the people."

Governor Hill McAlister, a democrat, was pledged in his platform against modification of the dry laws.

Unified Air Ministry Is Advocated by Howell

Chairman of Federal Aviation Commission, in Letter to House Committee, Gives Additional Views on America's Defense Needs.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Going beyond the broad recommendations on national air policy as presented to congress recently by the Federal Aviation Commission, of which he served as chairman, Clark Howell, of Atlanta, was revealed today to have just submitted to the house military affairs committee a supplemental statement of his individual views in which he comes forward with a definite commitment in favor of a separate cabinet ministry in charge of air transportation and air defense.

The Howell memorandum, made public by Chairman John J. McSwain, of the military affairs body, was described in some press dispatches out of Washington as an "aerial bombshell" because of the bold recommendations it contained.

Representative McSwain, South Carolina democrat, had first invited Mr. Howell to testify before his committee in connection with pending army air corps legislation, but asked that he present a written statement of his views after the Atlanta publisher expressed an unwillingness to appear.

Controversial Issues Omitted.

Mr. Howell's communication, which covering a wide range of suggested governmental air policy, attracted unusual comment on account of two controversial recommendations it contained, both of which were ignored by the aviation commission in its comprehensive report.

First, he expressed the conviction

GERMANY LASHES AT GENEVA PLEA

Resolution of Protest by France, Italy and Britain Termed One-Sided.

BERLIN, April 16.—(AP)—A German government spokesman said tonight: "We cannot acknowledge such a one-sided resolution (as that introduced in the League council by France, Great Britain and Italy). You may be certain if this goes through the League of Nations, Germany never will rejoin it."

Apparently surprised at the outspokenness of the resolution when they affirmed they were expecting something milder, German officials voiced bitter criticism of the French recourse to Geneva.

"France and Geneva are the real accused," the government spokesman pointed out, "yet Laval (Pierre Laval, French foreign minister) appears at Geneva as accuser, prosecutor and juror."

"We will remain outside the League in good company, with the United States."

"Geneva is on the stand, not us," the spokesman continued.

"The League completely failed to do its duty for nine years. Not once warning others to disarm. We do not want a new 'guilt' question thrown into the world," this in reference to the controversy concerning the responsibility for the World War.

Officials indicated they derived some satisfaction, however, from the fact that Laval had to bring his own res

SEC FIXES RULES ON WART TRADING

Action Is Taken To Discourage Manipulation of Prices.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—(UP)—The federal government tonight laid down 16 new rules for the country's stock exchanges designed to restrict excessive trading by brokers and to discourage manipulation of prices.

The rules were issued by the Securities and Exchange Commission for adoption by the exchanges. At the same time, the commission made public stock holdings of directors and officers of hundreds of American corporations.

John D. Rockefeller Jr. was shown in the stockholder figures to have disposed of 85,000 shares of Economy Corporation stock during March, bringing his total holdings down to 5,008,870 shares.

In its rules, calculated to prevent manipulation of prices, the SEC sought to prohibit excessive trading by members of exchanges, their firms and partners for their own account; to restrict the use of inside information in the securities market; to make purchases at successively higher prices or to sell at successively lower prices for the purpose of creating a misleading appearance of activity or unduly influencing the market price; and to prohibit the use of a price lower than the previous sale.

"These rules," SEC Chairman Joseph P. Kennedy said, "are intended by the commission to provide additional safeguards against certain activities on exchange which tend themselves to manipulative tendencies or produce trading of an excessive character."

He indicated that while the new rules were a "request" of the SEC for the exchanges to adopt such safeguards, they actually were mandatory. The exchanges must put them into effect immediately.

Among other rules exchanges must adopt are that a member handling a customer's discretionary account is forbidden to execute purchases or sales for such account which are excessive in size or frequency in view of the financial resources in the account. This is designed to eliminate trading for discretionary accounts which is motivated by the broker's desire to increase his commission.

The SEC also announced that a total of $130,015,787 new securities were registered with the commission in March—further indication that the "frozen" market is thawing out. This figure compared with $36,318,133 in February and $24,717,219 in March, 1934.

Confers With Forbes.
Governor Talmadge announced his stamping plans after conferring with T. M. Forbes, secretary of the Cotton Manufacturers' Association of Georgia. Forbes previously had stated he had been notified two months in Georgia already had been forced to close because of market conditions and that another was making plans to shut down at the end of the week.

E. Page, collector of internal revenue for Georgia, said no mills had closed in the state because of the processing tax. He said the tax levied on for the tax after it already had closed.

Page said the majority of cotton mill men with whom he had talked were not opposed to the tax itself but they are to the manner in which it is being assessed.

THREATS TO AAA ARE LAID TO FOES OF F. D. R. PLANS

supporting millmen. He announced at Atlanta that he was preparing to stump the cotton belt "to put a stop to this processing tax" on cotton.

In reply, G. W. Ashcraft, executive vice president of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation, said at Montgomery that this organization planned a protest campaign to counteract "insidious attacks on the agricultural adjustment act by interests opposed to agricultural welfare and national recovery."

AAA officials said they had received similar pledges of support from farmers attending the meeting of southern agricultural commissioners at Jackson, Miss., and a group of 150,000 Texas cotton growers.

"It attacks on the cotton processing tax continue were going to say to the cotton farmers 'Sic 'em,'" an AAA official said.

James Macfarland, president of the Fall River (Mass.) Cotton Manufacturers' Association, who declared yesterday he would rather go to jail than pay the cotton tax, asserted that the mill and mill discharge 750 employees as a protest against the levy.

Privately AAA officials expressed their abhorrence of the cotton processing tax. The cotton tax in congress will result in its abandonment. They said that other processing levies probably would be dropped in turn.

Nor was there any comfort in word regarding the AAA amendments. Senator Smith, democrat, South Carolina chairman of the senate agriculture committee, added that the chances of passage were highly problematical. Secretary Wallace said that the cotton tax was a "basic" power little protest for their enactment.

Wallace had said previously that failure of the amendments would probably result in abandonment of the AAA marketing agreement program, throwing the entire adjustment program out of gear.

The amendments are aimed at plugging up holes in the adjustment act discovered during the past two years of operation and the many court actions which have resulted from efforts to enforce it.

There were authoritative indications on the house side of the capital, meanwhile, that the cotton tax was again considered by the house committee, which once reported them out and recalled them, Wallace's powers to enforce the cotton tax.

Added to accumulated AAA worries was concern over the dress situation in the southwest.

Cotton textile men, pressing relentlessly their drive against the processing tax, said its number of mills probably would close within the next few days in protest against the levy.

As northern mill men planned a legal assault against the tax, they expected the first test case would reach the circuit court of appeals next week. This is the case of the Hoosier mills, of New Bedford.

The attacks on the AAA and Secretary Wallace continued on both sides of Capitol Hill.

Senator Austin, himself a lawyer, asserted he was of the opinion the cotton tax was a "basic" power little protest for their enactment.

Secretary Wallace was accused by Representative Rogers, republican, Massachusetts, of attempting to "mole" the cotton tax, and of "mole" the cotton tax, and of "mole" the cotton tax.

Key Gets Red Cross Button No. 1

Atlanta's first citizen was the first to receive his Red Cross button when the Red Cross roll call drive got under way in Atlanta yesterday.

sponsors of the resolution containing themselves with assailing all treaty violations. This was regarded here as an effort to take some of the sting out of the document.

German circles here, however, were quick to declare the resolution too strong. It will hinder Germany's participation in collective peace arrangements, they said.

The League council's eventual action on the resolution, authorities asserted, assuredly will affect the future of the League of Nations and that of Europe itself.

Dissemination among members of the council flared up immediately after introduction of the resolution, which Foreign Minister Pierre Laval of France, Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon, of England, and Baron Pompeo Aloisi of Italy, all supported in speeches.

Tall, erect Joseph Beck, foreign minister of Poland, pointed out that the Warsaw government has taken no part in negotiations leading up to the present situation and said Poles were suspicious of demands for new peace accords such as were proposed in the resolution.

"We fear these new accords," he said, "may hinder and weaken the regime of nonaggression on Poland's eastern frontier or compromise our friendly relations with our western neighbors."

Mr. Munch, the Danish representative, said he had "serious doubts" concerning certain points raised in the memorandum and would have to consult the government at Copenhagen.

Salvador De Madariaga, of Spain, reserved the right to introduce amendments.

No vote was taken on the resolution today, the council adjourning until tomorrow after debating it briefly.

Anti-Trust Curb NRA SOUGHT

Member of Board Tells Congress of Need; Harriman Asks Continuance

WASHINGTON, April 16.—(AP)—Hitting back at charges that the Blue Eagle had fostered monopoly, a member of the NRA board told congress today the new recovery law could be made a means of supporting and strengthening the anti-trust laws, instead of weakening them.

Attempting to meet some of the criticism heaped up against NRA, Dr. Hamilton Hamilton, board member, recommended to the senate finance committee that in extending the act, congress write into it a "positive injunction" against monopoly.

Hamilton testified after Henry I. Harriman, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, had asked the committee to extend the recovery law with some modifications.

"Harriman recommended a number of specific changes in the law, including a limitation of its scope to purely interstate commerce, but he urged that the labor section (7) should be retained as it is, so that a court test might be had upon it."

Hamilton told the committee NRA had been blamed for many monopolistic practices which had been in effect long before the recovery law was enacted. He said the administration of the anti-trust laws had not been overly effective when they were in full force.

During the 40 years the laws were on the books prior to 1933, Hamilton said, only 40 or 50 individuals were sent to jail under them and fines of less than $2,000,000 were collected, though during that period a concentration of industrial resources increased.

He said that by properly writing the new recovery law it would be "a very valuable addition to and supplement of the anti-trust acts."

Hamilton cited the aluminum industry as one that had presented a problem to the anti-trust laws. He said it was necessary to place a floor under prices in such industries as coal, it might be equally desirable to put a ceiling over the price of aluminum.

Harriman said too much was attempted under the original law, and that its scope should have been limited to big businesses in interstate commerce. He said the law should be amended to enforce an act which affected a large and hostile minority.

"Ever since," he added, "my faith in the basic principles of the NRA is unshaken, and I again appear on behalf of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, to urge, with certain specific changes, an extension of the act."

N. C. SENATE REFUSES REVENUE BILL CHANGES
RALEIGH, N. C., April 16.—(AP)—The senate was completely stymied today as its members, sitting as a committee of the whole, refused to make major changes in the biennial revenue bill and also declined to pass the bill on its first reading.

The senate had been asked to abolish the state banking commission and transfer its duties to the utilities commission and debated at length a measure to be the first to state a portion of their salaries withheld in 1933 due to a shortage of state funds.

SOUTH CAROLINA HOUSE SLASHES JOHNSTON'S POWER
COLUMBIA, S. C., April 16.—(AP)—The house today passed a bill which would deprive Governor Olin D. Johnston of the appointment of state highway commissioners after repulsing a move to convert it into an administration measure.

Following up its rejection of an administration bill to reduce the highway commission, the legislature advanced a so-called anti-administration bill to third reading.

The senate reconsidered its passage of a liquor licensing bill Friday and revised it by restoring an excise tax of 80 cents a gallon and eliminating a provision forbidding stores within 500 feet of churches and schools.

FLORIDA LEGISLATORS BACK DELINQUENT TENANT TALLAHASSEE, Fla., April 16.—(UP)—The house today killed a bill to permit criminal action against a tenant who refuses to heed notices to vacate when rental charges are in arrears and the lease has terminated. The present law permits only civil recourse.

The house endorsed and asked congress to enact into law the Frazier-Lemke and the Thomas farm measures.

The senate judiciary committee returned and marked "unconstitutional" a bill to create a Florida recovery board and procure loans and grants from the federal government and administer them. It also reported unfavorably a bill refunding the state tax on gasoline used for agricultural and marine purposes.

A proposed constitutional amendment to eliminate the state's one mill ad valorem tax for school purposes was reported unfavorably.

WOMAN FOE OF HUEY ELECTED FROM HOUSE
BATON ROUGE, April 16.—(AP)—The woman president of an anti-Huey P. Long organization was forcibly rushed from the Louisiana house of representatives tonight when she waved an American flag and shouted an objection to floor procedure.

The woman, Mrs. J. J. Roussel, president of the women's division of the Square Deal Association, was standing at a side rail holding an American flag when Representative Isom J. Guillory, administration leader, moved to invoke the gale barring speakers.

"I object!" shouted Mrs. Roussel. As the sergeant-at-arms took her through the door Mrs. Roussel loudly broke into the strains of "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Meanwhile Senator Long tonight introduced six additional and unexpected bills in the legislature under a supplemental call by Governor O. K. Allen. Introduction of the bills constituted a surprising departure from Long's customary practice of having all his decreed measures introduced on the opening night in enacted in minimum pre-day assembly.

In its report to congress the commission omitted to go into the subject of national air defense. The fact that the chairman of that body, after a long and exhaustive survey, now comes forward with a statement of his own views in support of the plan is not without significance. It will go far toward rallying public sentiment behind the necessity for immediate congressional action on a program which military experts assert to be a major need of our national defense.

Gang Sought To 'Buy' Bremer From Captors

ST. PAUL, Minn., April 16.—(AP)—Edward G. Bremer, St. Paul banker, testified in federal court late today that his kidnappers told him they had been offered a "certain amount of money" if they would turn him over to another gang.

The testimony was given in the trial of Arthur (Doc) Barker and nine others on trial for conspiracy in connection with Bremer's abduction January 7, 1934. Bremer, relating the horror of 21 days of captivity, said that as he was freed at Rochester, Minn., after payment of $200,000 ransom, the kidnapers informed him that another gang "wanted him."

"After giving me instructions to count 15 slowly before removing my goggles," Bremer said, "I was told that they had kept their promise. (To release him after ransom payment.) They said they had been offered a certain amount of money to turn me over to another gang."

75 Trampled To Death In Rush for Alms

LONDON, April 16.—(AP)—Seventy-five persons, mostly women and children, were trampled to death in a panic Sunday night among a crowd of alms seekers on Bahrain Island, in the Persian gulf, the India office disclosed tonight.

The mob assembled when it became known that a Persian merchant had planned to distribute alms to the poor. A clamorous multitude thronged a narrow passageway leading to the inner courtyard of the merchant's home.

In an attempt to control the mob, estimated to number 2,000 persons, the outer door was closed and locked. This door opened inward. In a few moments the panic was on. Eventually the door was broken open from the outside and the mad fight for freedom was over.

CLIPPER OVER SEA ON HONOLULU HOP

black hull as the clipper gathered speed. It raced along the surface for a quarter of a mile and, after 30 seconds, lifted into the air.

The sun was shining brilliantly at Alameda and weather conditions at sea were reported almost ideal. There were only a few scattered clouds on route and no adverse winds.

With a cruising speed of between 150 and 180 miles an hour, the plane was expected to reach Honolulu in between 10 and 18 hours.

A new radio compass, developed after tests by Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, will guide the plane.

The clipper weighed 41,500 pounds and carried 3,000 gallons of gasoline and 300 gallons of oil, enough to take it 3,500 miles.

Emergency rations included canned pork and beans, mock turtle and pea soup, veal, green peas and mashed potatoes, bread, tea, coffee and orange juice.

FIRE EQUIPMENT PROBE PROMISED

Board To Investigate Charges Made by Warren Company Officials.

Investigation of the condition of Atlanta's fire-fighting equipment loomed yesterday following charges by J. D. Harris, secretary-treasurer of the Warren Company, that faulty hose equipment seriously handicapped the firemen in the fight against the blaze Monday night which caused damage estimated at $150,000 to the plant of the refrigerator manufacturing company at 905 Fair street.

Councilman Howard McCutcheon, a member of the board of firemasters, said he would request at the meeting May 1 that the board instigate a thorough investigation of the entire equipment of the department, as he had heard similar complaints of faulty hose.

Praising the personnel of the department, McCutcheon said: "I insist that the department be properly equipped, as the public is entitled to better protection. If, as I have been told, the hose will not stand the pressure required to fight big blazes, we must give the department hose that will stand the strain. There is too much at stake to attempt to economize in such important equipment."

Sutton Promises Investigation.
Councilman Walter M. Sutton, chairman of the board of firemasters, said all charges of faulty equipment would be thoroughly investigated.

The first of four alarms was sounded at 5:55 o'clock Monday night, immediately after the blaze had been discovered by James Bryant, a machinist, who said sparks apparently had fallen on some oil tanks. The blaze had spread to the roof of the woodworking department by the time the first water was played on it.

A second alarm was turned in at 6:04 o'clock and 10 minutes later the third alarm was sounded. A call was sent out at 7:34 o'clock for an extra company.

Firemen battled the stubborn blaze for more than two hours.

Eight Firemen Treated.
Smoke and chemical burns about the eyes sent eight of the fire-fighters to Grady hospital for treatment after the blaze was extinguished. The men, who were dismissed after receiving emergency treatment, were Henry W. Rush, William R. Ham, George H. Keen, William M. Mayo, Captain Paul V. Neetherland, William E. Jones, Ralph J. Linder and John D. Waldron.

V. P. Warren, president of the company, charged that only one company answered the first alarm, "there was lost time in summoning other companies, and at least a dozen breaks occurred in the hose lines."

Fire Chief O. J. Parker last night said only three hose sections burst and that the damage was quickly repaired. He stated the chief difficulty encountered by the firemen was the distance the hose had to be run from the hydrants to the blaze, stating that it was necessary to lay 500 feet between 500 feet and 1,000 feet of hose to reach the fire.

No hose trouble has been experienced by the Atlanta department, Chief Parker stated, since the Atlanta Milling Company fire. The department has been furnished with 18,000 feet of new hose since that time, he said. The four alarms were answered promptly, he said, referring to records.

COMING To End RUPTURE Troubles

Representatives of Wm. B. Rice, Adams, N. Y., originator of the Rice Method for the self treatment of rupture at home, will be at the Henry Grady Hotel, Atlanta, Ga., Friday and Saturday, April 19 and 20, to give a personal and free trial of his method to all sufferers who want to end rupture trouble and truss wearing.

No matter how bad the rupture, how long you have had it, or how hard to hold; no matter how many kinds of trusses you have worn, let nothing prevent you from getting this FREE TRIAL. Whether you are tall and thin, short and stout, have a large abdomen, whether you think you are past help or have a rupture as large as your fists, this marvelous Method will so control and keep it up inside as to surprise you. It will so restore the parts where the rupture comes through that soon you will be as free to work at any occupation as though you had never been ruptured.

The trial will be absolutely complete and thorough without a penny of cost. You owe it to your own personal comfort and safety not to miss the great free demonstration. It is a real opportunity to learn how you may be done with chafing trusses and the danger, suffering and trouble your rupture has caused.

The hours are 9 to 12 a. m., 2 to 5 p. m., and evenings 7 to 9. Remember the dates and place, Henry Grady Hotel, Atlanta, Ga.—(adv.)

ARCADE GROUP FIGHTS POSTOFFICE REMOVAL

A vigorous campaign has been launched by the Arcade Co-operative Association, made up of tenants of the Arcade building, against a proposal made by the postoffice department in Washington to close the Arcade postoffice as of May 1. The Arcade Co-operative Association is being backed in its efforts against closing the postoffice by many business houses in the central business section who use the Arcade branch daily and by thousands of Atlanta's citizens who find the Arcade postoffice a great convenience.

So important does the Arcade Co-operative Association consider the question of retaining the Arcade postoffice that it is sending a representative to Washington to contact our congressman and postoffice department officials. A number of Atlanta's most prominent citizens have also wired postoffice officials in Washington urging them to retain the Arcade branch.

When a move was on foot in 1933 to close the Arcade postoffice more than 15,000 Atlanta citizens signed petitions within a few days urging that it be retained. At that time it was pointed out the Arcade branch transacts more business for the postoffice department than is transacted by the postoffice in a prominent southern city having a population in excess of 50,000.

The Arcade Co-operative Association, of which Luther Alverson is president, and L. L. Austin, secretary, is leaving no stone unturned in its fight to retain this branch. The association welcomes the support of the general public and of the other business interests of the city who use this post office.

M'BRAYER VISITS KEY, REPEATS REPEAL VIEW

The Rev. H. E. McBrayer, pastor of the Lakewood Heights Methodist church, yesterday reiterated his opposition to continuance of prohibition following a conference with Mayor Key, outspoken advocate of repeal.

Dr. McBrayer, who Monday was criticized in resolutions adopted by the Atlanta Methodist Ministers' Association for standing for repeal, said he would not change his views. He said he wanted to talk with the mayor because "we have much in common and he was criticized by the church for taking a stand against prohibition."

"I do not know what the consequences will be," the pastor said. "However, I have received hundreds of messages from my friends assuring me they agree with me. They think the quicker the state of Georgia is rid of the bone-dry law the better off the state is going to be."

Meanwhile it was announced here that Georgia Baptists who plan to attend the Southern Baptist convention in Memphis may remain in Georgia long enough to vote here and still reach Memphis in time to vote on important matters before the convention.

The office of Dr. Louis D. Newton, pastor of Druid Hills Baptist church, said it had received word from Dr. Newton in Nashville, Tenn., that the administrative committee of the convention, in session in Nashville today, had decided that no legislative or administrative action would be taken at the Memphis convention until May 16.

"Messengers to the Memphis convention from Georgia thus may remain in Georgia to vote May 15, and reach Memphis in time for any important vote of the convention," said the announcement from Dr. Newton's office. The message said the opening ceremonies of the Southern Baptist convention would begin at 2:30 p. m. on May 15.

Fulton Jury Indicts Three Alleged Yeggs

Three safe-cracking suspects were named in indictments returned by the Fulton county grand jury yesterday. The defendants, R. B. Haynie, W. A. Reeves and J. C. McConnell Jr., are charged with burglary of George Muse Clothing Company March 10 and S. E. Kress Company February 21. Silverware valued at $1,585, belonging to L. G. Balfour Company, was taken in the Muse burglary, while the Kress safe-blowing job netted the yeggs $1,792 in cash.

CLAIMS ASSOCIATION TO MEET HERE FRIDAY

Members of the Southeastern Claims Association, men who handle personal injury claims of railroads and power companies in this section, will gather at the Henry Grady hotel Friday for a two-day session, it was announced yesterday by W. J. Shaw, association secretary.

Featuring the convalescence will be a dinner at noon Friday, and addresses by R. K. Lewis, general counsel for the Florida Power Company and the Florida East Coast railroad; H. W. Wilson, district claim agent of the Louisville & Nashville railroad, and George Lewis, likewise an L. & N. district agent.

"CLEAN-UP, PAINT-UP" CO-OPERATION PLEDGED

Atlanta is going in for a general spring house cleaning, according to reports and promises of co-operation pouring into headquarters of the "Clean-up, Paint-up" campaign. The week will be observed from April 22 to 27 and is sponsored by the women's division of the Chamber of Commerce.

Unqualified indorsement of the project has been given by C. J. Cates, chief of the Atlanta sanitary department. "We have just begun an intensive piece of work in Atlanta's slums," Mr. Cates said. "Infant mortality, tuberculosis mortality, juvenile delinquency and even adult crime are reduced by clean-up campaigns."

"Give your property a square deal," has been adopted as the campaign slogan.

Road Crowd Sees Crackers Take Opener From Smokies, 9-0

BAMBINO MAKES NATIONAL DEBUT WITH HOME RUN

Crowd of 25,000 Turns Out for Braves' Opener Against Giants.

By Bill King.

BOSTON, Mass., April 16.—(AP)—With all the characteristic flamboyance of the great man in a crisis, George Herman (Babe) Ruth, the ancient hero of the American league, started life all over again at 40 in the National league today.

He personally touched off the season for his new mates, the Braves, by slugging one of his ancient enemies, left-handed Carl Hubbell, for a tremendous home run in the fifth inning of the season's opener with the New York Giants, driving in or scoring all four of his team's runs, making one circus catch, and exhilarating 25,000 fans, five governors, and a host of celebrities out of all thoughts of the bitter cold weather.

The Braves beat the Giants, 4 to 2, as far as the ball game as a whole was concerned, but beyond that everything was Ruth.

Back again after 15 years with the Yankees to the city where he started his career as a lanky, turkey-necked rookie from Baltimore in 1914, the Babe rose to the occasion as he has so many times in the past when the spotlight was upon him, the bands blaring, his people cheering him on.

FANS CHEER HIM.

Leading the enemy was the screwball southpaw, Hubbell, the man who fanned him ignominiously in the 1934 all-star game in New York, the man who each time they have met has walked off with all the honors.

The Babe killed two birds with two mighty swings of his bat. In the first inning, with Shortstop Bill Urbanski on base, he drove in the first Braves' run with a single that almost flattened Bill Terry on the first base line. Then he scored the second run himself as singles by Wally Berger, Pinky Whitney and Baxter Jordan followed. Then, after fanning with equal might in the second inning, he smote the blow that clinched things for the day. With Urbanski again on base, he wound himself at Hubbell's waist-high fast ball on the outside and sailed it far over the right-field wall for his first National league home run, the 724th of his career.

A GREAT CATCH.

To rub it in further to the critics who have demeaned his fielding for the past couple of years, the Babe wound up his Hubbell vendetta with an astounding catch of a nasty drive the pitcher slammed over third base. His knees pumping up under his chin, his fat form wiggling, Ruth thundered down the foul line and just did get there in time to rob Hubbell of a hit with a last-second stab.

Although Ruth dominated the scene, Lefty Ed Brandt, Braves' southpaw, pitched midseason ball, despite the cold and snow that fell lightly in the eighth inning. He held the Giants to five hits. A pass to Joe Moore, Dick Bartell's single, and Terry's double in the sixth scored the Giants' pair. Hubbell was hit safely nine times, five hits coming in the first inning. He was relieved at the start of the seventh by Al Smith, another southpaw, who wound up Ruth's typical day by fanning the great man in the seventh inning. Ruppert Thompson, a rookie, replaced Ruth in left field in the eighth.

The occasion was labelled "Judge Emil Fuchs" day in honor of the club president who brought Ruth back to New England when no one in the American league wanted him any more. There were elaborate programs, speeches, and a parade. Fuchs disappeared, Ruth took over, and the boys didn't seem to mind at all.

Dizzy Injured by Line Drive in Opening Game With Cubs

BAER, BRADDOCK MEET JUNE 13 AT NEW YORK

Commission Approves Three Other Bouts in Meeting.

NEW YORK, April 16.—(UP)—Max Baer will defend his world's heavyweight boxing championship when he meets James J. Braddock at the Madison Square Garden, June 13, according to a statement issued by the New York State Athletic Commission today.

The bout was one of four major ones given official approval by the commission.

Others: Lou Ambers vs. Tony Canzonieri, winner to be declared lightweight champion, May 10, Madison Square Garden (indoor). Barney Ross vs. Jimmy McLarnin, welterweight championship, May 28, Polo Grounds, Primo Carnieri vs. Joe Louis, June 25, Yankee Stadium.

N. G. I. C. STARTS SEASON TODAY

A reorganized North Georgia Intercollegiate Conference baseball league will open a 10-game schedule at 3 o'clock this afternoon with three games carded. Another round of three games will be played Friday with the remainder of the schedule being played on Tuesday and Friday afternoons.

Gainesville plays Russell High at East Point; Decatur journeys to Marietta, and Fulton opens at South-west DeKalb.

SMITHIE, PURPLES MEET 'ON TRACK'

Tech High's track athletes will meet the Boys' High team Wednesday afternoon at Grant field beginning at 3 o'clock in the first track meet between the two teams of the season.

Boys' High is the heavy favorite to win, but the underdogs have been known to win before and the Smithies will undertake to do it. Coach Ward has again developed a fine team, with power in every event. Harry Stevens, Charlie Belcher and Gilbert form the nucleus for the dash events, with Guber and Cowles in the distance runs. Gay Thrash is one of the finest hurdlers ever developed by Ward. Thrash won second place at Chapel Hill in the Southern Conference indoor meet.

Had the day been the crowd would have reached even larger proportions, possibly exceeding 20,000. As it was, joyful concessionaires sold out of hot dogs and hamburgers and had to send hurriedly for more supplies. Large supplies of soft drinks, planned to last for three days, were consumed.

HUNGRY CROWD. The pretty girls serving hot dogs worked until their arms were limp. "It was certainly a hungry crowd," said one of the young ladies. "I thought some of those fellows were going to snap off my fingers."

It was quite a day. And, incidentally, isn't it too about Babe Ruth? Poor fellow. He's all washed up. All he did was hit a home run.

Atlanta Is Overjoyed As Crackers 'Open Up'

Great Attendance Record Tops All But Three Major League Towns.

By Ralph McGill.

A slightly mad and daffy city was our town last night. It rocked itself to sleep with bedtime stories about those Atlanta Crackers who yesterday led all minor leagues in attendance and topped all but two major league towns to see the home nine open with a 9-to-0 victory over the Knoxville. And a crowd of 18,671.

The restaurants were a roar of conversation, the bars were joyous; people smiled at each other in the streets; taxi drivers and their fares talked amiably; husbands praised the dinner prepared by the little woman; it was a city gone plain daffy about a ball club.

It was a sight to your old partner, that 9-to-0 score and the crowd which smashed the 1931 record of 17,201 paid attendance. It saw everything asked for yesterday morning—the starting pitcher, and a game that was never in doubt.

NEWSPAPERS SPONSOR. And it made Atlanta's newspapers look good. In past years various organizations have spent the ball club's money "sponsoring" the opening day. This year the ball club let the newspapers sponsor it and took out large ads.

The result made sponsoring agencies look good. The crowd was a record for the minors and topped time of the eight major league towns in attendance. The newspapers, plus the ball club, got the crowd.

CRACKERS WILL PACK IN ANOTHER 18,000 PEOPLE. This ball club had everything yesterday—home runs, doubles, lots of runs, and air-tight pitching by Harry Kelley, the great right-hander who was returned to the club during the winter months after Judge Landis had ruled that Toronto, which had drafted Kelley, actually was acting for the Cincinnati ball club.

The ceremonies were attractive. The feature, of course, was the pitching of Miss Louisa Robert, president of the Atlanta Debutante Club, who hit Governor Eugene Talmadge with her first effort as Georgia's governor stood at the plate as the first batter.

The crowd astonished baseball officials. The day was cold and windy. But the crowd filled the bleachers an hour and a half before game time and then kept coming until the entire stands and all the outer reaches of the park were filled.

Had the day been the crowd would have reached even larger proportions, possibly exceeding 20,000. As it was, joyful concessionaires sold out of hot dogs and hamburgers and had to send hurriedly for more supplies. Large supplies of soft drinks, planned to last for three days, were consumed.

STAR COLLAPSES AT FIRST BASE FIELDING BALL

Blow From Lindstrom's Bat Strikes Ace on Leg.

CUBS PARK, CHICAGO, April 16.—(UP)—Dizzy Dean, St. Louis Cardinal pitcher star, was carried off the field in the first inning of the opening game against the Cubs today after he had been struck on the left leg by a vicious line drive off the bat of Freddie Lindstrom.

Catcher Clyde Wares and Mike Gonzales carried the World Series hero off the field to the clubhouse for a quick examination.

Dean was on the mound despite the frigid blasts that swept across Lake Michigan over Wrigley field and attempted to stop the hot smash of Lindstrom's bat. The ball struck him, apparently above the left ankle, with a crack, but he ran after the ball in an attempt to make the out at first.

He reached the first base line and then collapsed as Augie Galan dashed across the plate with the first run of the game.

A quick examination was made and cold applications applied to the injured ankle. The trainers were fairly sure that there was no break, but the great pitcher was immediately taken to the hospital for an X-ray.

Dean was cheerful as they applied cold packs, although in pain. Informed there was no fracture, Dizzy left the hospital without looking at the X-ray plates, promising his mates he would be back soon.

CUBS 4, CARD 3. ST. LOUIS, April 16.—(UP)—The Cardinals won their first game of the season today, 4 to 3, over the Chicago Cubs at Cubs park.

The Cardinals' victory was a surprise to many fans, who expected the Cubs to win. The Cardinals' pitching was excellent, and they were able to keep the Cubs' offense in check.

The Cardinals' offense was also strong, and they were able to score runs in the first and third innings. The Cubs' offense was weak, and they were unable to score any runs.

The Cardinals' victory was a big boost for their fans, who had been disappointed by the team's performance in the previous season. The Cardinals are now looking forward to a successful season.

BULLPUPS WIN TRACK CARNIVAL

ATHENS, Ga., April 16.—The Georgia freshmen ran away with Lanier High school of Macon; Georgia Military Academy and Athens High here this afternoon in a quadrangular track meet. Georgia scored 85 points, Lanier High was second with 40; G. M. A. got 10 points while Athens High was fourth with only one point.

For Georgia, George Johnson, Lumpkin and Jack Farrin were outstanding. These three Bullpups scored more points than the three competing teams could amass.

Monk Apple of Atlanta, won the high jump and took second places in the broad jump and high hurdles to score 11 points.

Tech High Golfers Easily Beat Athens

ATHENS, Ga., April 16.—Tech High's golfers defeated Athens High 17-1 to 1-2, here this afternoon on the Athens Country Club course. It was the second consecutive victory for the Atlanta team over Athens High.

Jack Cook was paired with Brown and they won 8-12 points together from Dudley and Bill Reed.

DODGERS 12, PHILLIES 2.

PHILADELPHIA, April 16.—Van Lingle Munn, pitcher of the Brooklyn Dodgers, personally conducted the Dodgers to a 12-to-2 victory over the Phillies today as the National League season opened in Philadelphia with only 3,000 cheering fans in the stands.

The right-hander set the Phillies down with five hits, fanning six, and drove in five runs as he connected with three singles in the first inning.

Joe Stupp also contributed three hits each in the Dodgers' 15th attack off three Phillies. The Dodgers' offense was strong, and they were able to score runs in the first and third innings.

first batter and after Miss Robert and plunked him on the shank with a wild pitch, took his stand and hit a sharp grounder back to the box as the crowd cheered.

Then "Steamboat" Johnson, the umpire veteran of Southern league, dashed off the plate with lightning strokes of his little white broom and the game was on.

Kelley drew a big cheer when he retired Kuch and Kist (sounds like a K. K. K. meeting) as the first two hitters up and then young Lipscomb made a fine play on Stebbins' grounders to end the inning.

It remained for Lipscomb, the rookie member of the team, to start the first Cracker lining off in thrilling fashion when he drove a lusty double down the left-field line to score a moment later on Sheriff Harris' equally torrid two-bagger.

BUNTS FUTILE. The smokers, in their futile efforts to get Kelley, the Cracker, tried bunting on him after the third inning with no success.

The Cracker infield, poised with like alertness, pounced on everything they laid down and Harry Taylor, the first baseman, distinguished himself by coming up with several hurried throws to first.

Captain Burt Cheatham gave a sparkling exhibition at shortstop, handling seven chances—several of them tough—without an error, while Taylor handled 15 faultlessly at first.

Yankee Eddie Moore came up with a nice play at third base, while Lipscomb had a couple in his credit at second. Oana's home-run was Atlanta's only inspiring offensive stroke.

Although Paul Easterling belted out a tremendous drive that Rosenfield played deeply to catch in the seventh, the home run would have gone over the fence in most of the Southern league parks.

NO MATCH. The smokers, who had been able to place only one exhibition game prior to coming here, due to bad weather should be easy picking for the Crackers in their first six games unless they show tremendous improvement. Although aided in several spots by the Red Sox, they were no match for the Crackers yesterday.

Atlanta looked more impressive than any club which has come to the barrier for this city in ten years, old observers thought, and the best club, in fact, since the last pennant winner of 1925. It should go places if nothing happens to it.

The Crackers, after their lone appearance yesterday, jump over to Knoxville today to open that team's home season, which has been postponed by a rainstorm.

They return here for games with the same club on Saturday and Sunday before hitting the road again to play at St. Louis.

Bill Schmidt, the Crackers' prize rookie, will pitch today's game in Knoxville, Manager Moore stated, while the opposition will be the Leones (Lefty) Moon, ace of the Knoxville staff and one of the league's leading pitchers last year.

Jim Lindner, suspended pitcher, will take along his pitch batting practice and get in shape.

BREAK of the DAY!

Georgia Coleman, the former world's champion diver. Her short, yellow hair catches the sun. She seems excited with the crowd. She is wearing a brown, plaid coat and is bare-headed. Hasn't worn a hat for years.

The crowds flow in. This man Franklin D. Roosevelt has done it, boys. Remember those dark days when he came into office with banks popping like a new saddle? Well, things have got better slowly but steadily. People are happier and are spending again. As long as he's in the White House we'll be all right.

This is a happy, excited, cheering throng. The national game is attracting its own again.

THE RITUAL BEGINS. The ritual begins. The bands assemble. A whistle cuts through the noise. The drums tap.

The flags begin to mass behind the brown uniforms of the Tech High and Boys' High bands. Behind the colors are the blue uniforms of the Legion drum and bugle corps.

The teams line up at the plate for the old, old march to the flag pole in center field.

Here comes the band, brasses and woodwinds going, the drums throbbing. The sun glints on the instruments.

The wind catches the stars and stripes of the silk flag and the stripes become alive, flowing, voluting, with an iridescent sheen showing clearly. You know, looking at it and hearing the band, that you'd die for that flag no matter how horrible and unnecessary war may be, brought on as it always is by economic pressure. One thing is certain. You love that flag.

They march on and pause before the flag pole. The leader's baton rises above the silence and then there is the crashing music of the national anthem. And up the long, tall pole another flag begins to move.

Your spine begins to tingle. Your scalp feels warm. The flag is going up. The stands break into applause even though they are supposed to be still.

The flag moves on up and at the peak billows out into the sun and another cheer comes from the great crowd.

The last notes rise and fall and then it is done. They quick-step back with the drum and bugle corps playing that ribald old marching song of the United States marines, "Hinky Dinky Parlez Vous."

You think of Francis Scott Key seeing the flag at daybreak after a night of wondering. You think of marines at Belleau Wood and of the armies in the field. It leaves you a bit limp.

There is no ritual like it. It is done in hundreds of parks every year and it never grows old.

The spell is done. The crowd begins to yell. "Down in front." There are flowers for Eddie Moore. A cake for Eddie Moore. The cake represents the playing field and the stands.

THE THIRD DEGREE. It is time for the third degree in the ritual of opening the baseball season.

Miss Louisa Robert, beautiful and charming, walks out to the pitcher's mound, smiling that famous smile. She wears a baseball cap and a baseball sweater in addition to a charming creation which the society editors must describe.

Governor Eugene Talmadge, coat off, takes his place at the bat.

AND MISS ROBERT'S FIRST PITCH HITS HIM. The crowd laughs and Miss Robert tries again. The governor hits a light grounder and she fields it and throws to first.

Miss Robert is easily the finest opening day pitcher the game has seen.

More flowers. This time for Claude Bond, the Atlanta boy who was appointed umpire this season. Steamboat Johnson stands with him, behind the big floral horseshoe.

PLAY BALL! The umpires never say, "Play ball," merely calling "Play," but the crowd does.

This one begins to yell. "Play ball." The crowd is magnificent. It climbs onto the terraced signboards in right field. It fills the terraces of turf in center field. It stands in rows in the back of the grandstand.

The record of 17,201, set in 1931, is in grave danger. The paid attendance won't be known until hours after this is written but it looks like that 18,000 and more. May I pay another tribute to the Atlanta fans, the greatest in the world? Where is this town of New Orleans that dares challenge us?

And this crowd was obtained by the newspapers without any sponsorship by any organization. Which should mean something.

Big Harry Kelley walks to the mound. The managers confer. And then it begins. The first game of the 1935 season is on.

The national game? Yes, sir. And for good reason.

POWDER BLAST WRECKS VILLAGE

Seven Persons Injured,
75 Homes Damaged or
Razed in Tennessee.

HELENWOOD, Tenn., April 16.—(P)—Seven persons were injured, approximately 75 made homeless and 50 homes and buildings destroyed or damaged when 250 kegs of blasting powder and 20 cases of dynamite exploded today in the center of Helenwood, a small village near the Kentucky-Tennessee line.

The explosives, stored in a small mine supply house, were set off by a burning residence near by.

Sensing the danger of the flames, J. O. O'Connell, railroad agent, his wife, and R. H. Cecil, merchant, spread the alarm, firing pistols and shouting for the 250 residence of the town to flee.

Screaming mothers gathered children to their arms and almost the entire populace fled to shelter and the wooded mountains surrounding the village.

Cecil took about 40 persons into a storm house a few moments before the terrific explosion tore the supply house and the two-story Masonic hall, near by to shattered bits and caved in sides of houses several hundred yards away.

The C. N. O. & T. P. railway station, 200 yards away, was smashed in two and two churches and three stores of the village were damaged beyond repair. Merchandise in the stores was piled in heaps.

Those injured were Miss Ella Toomey, Mrs. Angie Noble and Mrs. Louis Williams, sisters of former State Senator John Toomey, who failed to leave their home. The home was badly wrecked and the three sisters, and Floyd Pemberton, 14, who lived there, suffered bruises and cuts from flying glass. Others who suffered injuries, reported as slight, were Mrs. George Cross and her 18-month-old baby; Mrs. Thomas Daniel and John Phillips.

"The town is a total wreck," Mrs. O'Connell, the railway agent's wife, said. "There are at least 15 families who can't enter their homes tonight. All the other homes are damaged."

After the explosion residents gathered to view the wreckage. They huddled on the street, shivering in the cold wind. Many were crying and praying.

On a corner sat a man reading a Bible to a group gathered about him. The Red Cross immediately ordered W. I. Jones, field representative, and other workers from Knoxville to the scene to give aid.

The deafening explosion shook the town of Oneida, six miles away. A traveling salesman on the highway four miles from Helenwood reported that his car was lifted several inches in the air by the blast.

The fire, which caused the explosion, started in the home of Mrs. Burdette Keeton, 10 feet from the mine supply house. The powder house was owned by George Webb, lumber and coal dealer.

Pepsicol is Ideal Spring Tonic For Thin, Rundown People

Science now knows that a weak, run-down condition, loss of weight, thin blood, and many other common complaints are often due to the system being starved for vital mineral salts. Pepsicol quickly relieves these conditions and supplies the blood, nerves, and tissues with elements that promote a prompt return to health, strength and vitality. Pepsicol strengthens digestion from the first day, cleanses the system of poisonous waste, and promotes rich, red blood. It strengthens action of liver, bowels and other vital organs. Your tired, run-down feeling disappears, appetite and digestion improve, you sleep better, and the entire system begins to take on new strength, energy and vitality. Thin, nervous people gain weight from the very first bottle. Pepsicol costs only $1 at all good druggists. Money-back guarantee if it fails to help you.—(adv.)

MRS. PAULINE D. RUBIN FUNERAL RITES TODAY

Former Missionary to Mexico
Died Monday Night in Hospital.

Mrs. Pauline Dunlap Rubin, former missionary to Mexico, who died Monday night at a hospital, will be paid final tribute at 10:30 o'clock this morning at the chapel of Awtry & Lowndes. She resided in Hapeville.

The Rev. J. H. Allison will conduct the rites and interment will be in the cemetery at Oxford, Ga.

Mrs. Rubin, a graduate of Wesleyan College, was a missionary to Laredo, Mexico, where she and her late husband, the Rev. Vincent Rubin, established the Dunlap School of English, of which she was principal for 12 years. Following his death, she returned to Georgia.

She was the daughter of the late Rev. and Mrs. W. C. Dunlap. Surviving are three brothers, W. M. Dunlap, of Atlanta; A. C. Dunlap, of San Pedro, Cal.; and C. E. Dunlap, of Savannah; and four sisters, Mrs. Ellie Dunlap Newport, Miss Hattie Dunlap and Mrs. Lula Dunlap Neri, of Atlanta and Mrs. Mamie B. Quillian, of Pleasanton, Texas.

Baptists To Open Convention Today

The fifteenth annual session of the Georgia Baptist Sunday school convention will open at 10 o'clock this morning at the First Baptist church with W. E. Howard, of LaGrange, president, presiding. The sessions will run through Friday.

The welcome to Atlanta will be extended by Dr. Ellis A. Fuller and will be followed by music and the introduction of convention officers and state workers. The president's address will begin at 10:40 o'clock. Departmental conferences will start at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Dr. M. E. Dodd, president of the Southern Baptist convention, will deliver an address on "The World Outlook and Baptist Opportunity" at 8:55 o'clock tonight.

DAVID MONCRIEF WINS CONTEST AT MARIST

David Moncrief was awarded the P. O. Herbert medal in the senior declamation contest at Marist College yesterday. His subject was "The South and Her Problems," by Henry W. Grady.

Second award was given to Robert Umbach for his delivery of "The Death Penalty," by Victor Hugo. Third place was awarded Anthony O'Donnell for the topic, "The House in Order," by Harry R. Evans. Elocution training is under the direction of Father Ryan and Father Emmerth. Eight students took part in the competition.

Change in Processing Tax Collection Rules Proposed

Internal revenue collection problems were discussed yesterday by W. E. Page, internal revenue collector here, at left, and Wright Matthews, first assistant United States internal revenue collector, right, who visited Atlanta while on a tour of the southern states.

Investigation to determine whether a change can be made in the method of collecting the cotton processing tax, a source of major dissatisfaction among southern textile manufacturers, was promised by Wright Matthews, assistant collector of internal revenue, on a visit to Atlanta yesterday.

Mr. Matthews, who is first assistant to Guy T. Helvering, United States collector of internal revenue in Washington, visited the offices of W. E. Page, Atlanta collector, while on a semi-official tour of internal revenue offices in the southern states. He is en route to his home in Palestine, Texas.

Textile manufacturers of Georgia have complained, not so much against the processing tax, as the method of collecting it. Under the present setup, the tax of 4 1/2 cents a pound is assessed as soon as a bale of cotton is opened in the textile plant. The manufacturer then has 60 days in which to pay the assessment.

Georgia mill owners have suggested to Mr. Page that if the procedure could be changed so that the tax is assessed at the time the bale is opened but not collected until the finished

2 WOMEN PICKETS THRICE ARRESTED WITHIN 3 HOURS

The police lieutenant looked up startled. "What's this, an endurance contest?" he asked.

For the third time in fewer hours, yesterday afternoon the lieutenant peered at the names of Miss Carolyn Wolfe, of New York, and Miss Ruby Ezell, of Atlanta, and the charges were "disorderly conduct, refusing to move on."

The women were first arrested by Patrolmen S. I. Belcher and W. F. Crumley at the request of L. D. Thompson, manager of the plant of the American Hat Company, on Trinity avenue, where they were picketing.

The first time they were arrested they were released on copies of charges.

As soon as they were released, they returned to the sidewalk in front of the plant, but hadn't progressed far with their picketing when they were arrested by Lieutenant C. H. Mitchell. They posted $27 cash collateral each on this occasion and returned to the picket line.

Lieutenant Mitchell, accompanied by Lieutenant E. W. Ginn, made the third arrest and the women posted $50 cash collateral each and again returned to the picket line, where they announced they would remain all night.

One of the pickets explained that the women had leaped up against the hat manufacturing building, which technically, "put them on the company's property."

The workers at the plant are out on strike which began last Wednesday when the employers walked out because of alleged violations of Section 7-A of the NRA code.

National headquarters of the garment workers' union has telegraphed the local strikers they would be "backed to the finish."

tax, inasmuch as more processing tax money is paid to Georgia cotton growers than is collected from textile manufacturers of the state, Mr. Matthews declared.

Mr. Page informed his superior there have been 90.73 per cent collections of processing taxes of all kinds and there has been less trouble and less grumbling about paying this type of tax than any other.

A luncheon honoring Mr. Matthews was given in the Capital City Club yesterday noon, attended by a number of Atlanta's leading citizens.

Leaving Atlanta, the assistant tax collector will go to Birmingham, Austin, Dallas, Little Rock, Jacksonville, and other southern cities.

DAVID T. HOWARD, 86, NEGRO LEADER, DIES

Founder of Undertaking Establishment Had Been in Business Here 53 Years.

David T. Howard, one of the leading negro businessmen in the state, died yesterday afternoon at the residence of his daughter, Eleanor B. Murphy, at 410 Merritts avenue, N. E. He was 86.

He was president and founder of the David T. Howard undertaking establishment and had been in business in Atlanta 53 years.

Son near Crawfordville, Howard was a slave of Colonel T. B. Howard, father of William Schley Howard, the prominent Atlanta lawyer.

After the War Between the States Howard came to Atlanta and in 1880 established his first funeral directing company on Marietta street. Later he was located at "Broad and Walton streets and in 1915 he moved his company to Piedmont avenue, its present location.

The David T. Howard school on Houston street is named after him, and he was known as a patron of the colored Y. M. C. A., to which he gave thousands of dollars during his life.

He was charitable and interested in his race and devoted much of his time to its betterment. He was treat-ner of the Bethel church and was one of the leaders who erected a statue of Booker T. Washington at the school by that name here.

Howard put many poor negro boys and girls through college and asked only that they study and fit themselves for a life of leadership in their race. He was a member of the Interracial Commission.

He was the father of Henry G. Howard, Eleanor B. Murphy, Lottie Howard, and Julia Howard, of Atlanta, and Fannie M. Douglas, of Washington, D. C.

There is no need for a lot of whangdoodle talk about cigarettes —just plain common-sense

When you stop to think about your cigarette—what it means to you—here's about the way you look at it—

Smoking a cigarette gives a lot of pleasure—it always has.

People have been smoking and enjoying tobacco in some form or another for over 400 years.

Of course you want a cigarette to be made right. And naturally you want it to be mild. Yet you want it to have the right taste—and plenty of it.

In other words—you want it to Satisfy.

Scientific methods and ripe mild tobaccos make Chesterfield a milder and better-tasting cigarette. We believe you will enjoy them.

Newlyweds' Home Is Furnished By Antiques of Historical Value

By Sally Forth.

AN ATMOSPHERE of genuine hospitality, typical of the old south, prevails in the attractively furnished apartment of Betty and Gus Ashcraft on West Peachtree street. No doubt this is due to the handsome antique furniture arranged in the rooms, which present a home-like and dignified appearance. Betty and Gus, whose marriage was an event of only a few weeks ago, have occupied their apartment for one week only. Yet the furnishings are so complete and so aged with beauty that it gives the resemblance of years of living within its walls. This was made possible by the thoughtfulness and generosity of Betty's mother, Mrs. Madison Bell, and Gus' aunt, Mrs. Lee Ashcraft. Practically all the furnishings were given the newlyweds by them. Most of the pieces of furniture have been valued heirlooms in their families for generations.

Sally was impressed with the handsome mahogany table with black marble top arranged in the apartment's entrance reception room. The table belonged to Mrs. Lee Ashcraft's grandparents. Betty's artistic nature was revealed in the attractive arrangement of a pair of white Wedgwood vases holding crimson-colored tulips and arranged on either side of the highly polished marble-top table.

A breath of romantic Italy is introduced in the reception room by the beautiful piece of Italian wood carving hung over the gray stone fireplace. The carving was bought by Betty during her last trip to Europe.

In the dining room which adjoins the reception hall is an old-fashioned sideboard that Betty prizes very highly. It belonged originally to her great-grandmother, the late Mrs. Serena Dillard, of Cartersville. By the way, Sally learned recently that Betty was christened with the musical-like name of Serena for her devoted grandmother. But when she grew to little girl age she, of her own accord, changed her name to Betty. The sideboard, which is of a dull walnut finish with plain flat top, has passed its second century birthday. No wonder Betty considers it priceless.

As Sally roamed through the apartment she noted each piece of furniture with its beauty and its history. Catching her observing eyes was the novel stand in the bedroom, where massive mahogany antique pieces are placed. A round mirror is attached to the upper part of the stand. On either side of the mirror are brackets for candles or lamps. We were informed that this unusual piece was known as a "wig stand," before which gentlemen of long ago arranged their wigs. Gus plans to use it as a shaving stand.

A really and truly old-fashioned atmosphere is achieved in the cozy little den of the apartment. Here in one corner is ensconced a small organ whose keys are yellow with age but still produce melodious notes. The organ is Betty's pride and joy. She derives much pleasure in playing the little black organ, which is a far cry from the radio, the only modern piece of furniture in the apartment.

LITTLE Florence Hinman Warren will be christened next Sunday. She is the adorable 15-month-old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Green D. Warren and the namesake of Mrs. Thomas P. Hinman. The christening takes place on Easter, preceding the morning service at St. Mark church. Dr. James W. Johnson, the pastor, will christen the little girl.

Petite Florence will wear a dress made of the finest white

Miss Lillian Doctor Weds Mr. Buckwall.

The marriage of Miss Lillian Doctor and Sam Buckwall took place on March 24, at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Doctor, at 689 Boulevard N. E. Rabbi H. Epstein performed the ceremony in the presence of relatives and close friends. Ferns and stately palms formed the background of the altar which was graced with silver baskets filled with white roses. Miss Bertha Ziff sang "I Love You Truly," accompanied at the piano by Mrs. P. M. Cannon. Alvin Davies played the violin.

Miss Sylvia Kahanow, cousin of the bride, was her only attendant. She wore a model of flesh-colored and white tulle. The bridegroom entered with his mother, Mrs. R. Buckwall, followed by the best man, David Doctor, brother of the bride.

The bride entered with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Doctor, by whom she was given in marriage. Her wedding gown was of white satin fashioned on princess lines, featuring a train and long tight sleeves. The veil was fashioned with a cap of orange blossoms and the folds of illusion tulle fell the full length of her train. She carried a bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley.

An informal reception followed the ceremony. The bride's table was overlaid with an Italian lace cloth and centered with a four-tiered wedding cake, topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom. The other appointments were silver candelsticks holding burning tapers, and silver baskets filled with flowers. The bride's book was kept by Mrs. Herbert Gavron, of Anneton, Ala.

The bride and bridegroom left on a trip for points east, after which they will reside in Cleveland, Ohio.

Out-of-town guests were Mrs. J. Backer, Aaron Backer, Mr. and Mrs. M. Knudsen, Mrs. Knudsen, and Mrs. J. Doctor, Miss Lillian Doctor, Fritz Frankel, of Macon, Ga.; S. Boyer and Mrs. Callie Meyer, of Athens, Ga.; Miss Dotsie Stark, of Sylacauga, Ala.; Mr. and Mrs. B. Cohen and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Greer and Miss Mary Greer, of Valdosta, Ga.; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Gavron, of Anneton, Ala.; and Leon Landau, of Elberton, Ga.

The Beautiful Derelict

BY CAROLYN WELLS

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

While Fleming Stone, famous detective, is about the National home, a beautiful yacht, drifting helplessly, is sighted in a fog somewhere off Martha's Vineyard on Nantucket. With Captain Gregg's permission, Stone accompanies Fleming, the third mate, and his lifeboat crew to the craft. On the deck is a body of a well-dressed man of about 40 who from papers in his pocket is Blaine Van Zandt, of New York City. In the hold, lying face downward before the motor, is a good-looking young man of about 25, dead from a terrible wound on the back of the head. So when Stone and his men, inflated it is to be found. Stone suggests that the body be taken to the National home and Captain Gregg, remaining on board, a member of the lifeboat crew named Zeb, in the younger man's pocket is a black card, clear case bearing the monogram W. B. or W. R. in tiny diamonds. In the cabin, on a table, is a photograph of a beautiful girl in a silver frame. Across one corner is written "Barry from Jane." Stone tries to reconstruct the double murder. If murder it is, and finds that he is always taking a third person into account. Barry undoubtedly was the owner and captain. Van Zandt a guest. The latter, it is evident, either died a natural but painful death or succumbed to a poison, as the face is contorted. Van Zandt is a slightly built man and Stone discards the theory that he killed Barry and then committed suicide. But, if not, who killed him? Stone is puzzled.

STOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"I am Daniel Wayne," said one, "and this is my brother Patrick Wayne. Young Barry Wayne is—was my son. The yacht, Mad Anthony, was his property and what this dreadful news means, I don't know. Can you enlighten me?"

"Let me talk, Dan," said his brother, with a kindly note in his voice. "We live over at Sand Hill, Nantucket Island, on a rather large estate. My brother and his son Barry, and myself comprise the family. We frequently have house guests. Just now several people are with us for the international races. Yesterday morning we planned to go over to Newport to lunch with some friends. Some of us were on a friend's yacht, some in a motor launch, and Barry proposed to go in his own yacht, the Mad Anthony, taking his fiancée, Miss Holt.

"But at the last minute, Miss Holt's father refused to let his daughter go with Barry alone, and decreed that she should go with him, and meet Barry at the Newport party. Both the young people were terribly upset, but Mr. Holt was inexorable, and they had to submit. With an idea of throwing himself into the breach, Van Zandt, another guest, said he would go with Barry. The boy, angered at the situation, said he didn't care who went with him, and he and Van Zandt started off for the club, where the yacht is kept. From that point we know absolutely nothing of the two men, or of the yacht.

"We want that, Mr. Demarest," said Pat Wayne. "All we ask is the administration of justice. Do I understand Mr. Stone is investigating the affair?"

"Yes," Stone answered. "I expressed a desire to do so, and I am to be allowed. With, of course, your sanction and approval. I shall ask no fee."

"We most certainly give our approval," Daniel Wayne said. "The fees will be discussed at some other time. Now, may I see your boy? I am holding myself together for these preliminaries, but my heart is breaking, and as far as possible I shall shift my routine work to the shoulders of my brother—who will stand by me."

No word was necessary from Pat, who in a brief glance promised all the assistance of which he was capable.

Friends of these brothers often declared they could not say which was the finer man. A patriotic mother had named them Daniel Webster and Patrick Henry, and except for a sense of humor, which Pat possessed in abundance and Dan had but scant store of, they showed similar traits and tastes.

Dan was five years the older, and though Barry loved his father better, he was deeply devoted to his Uncle Pat.

And now, Barry, who was always foremost in the thought of the two brothers, was no more, and they saw ahead the great emptiness that life without the boy would mean.

Hoping to spare his brother at least one pang of grief, Pat went to the morgue to identify the two bodies.

Knowing them at once for Barry Wayne and Elkins Van Zandt, he further explained that the latter was a guest at the Wayne home, and that his wife was still there awaiting news of her husband.

"A terrible matter, all round," Pat said to Fleming Stone. "Mr. Van Zandt was a frail man, physically, but he was a big gun in his profession. A New York lawyer, of the highest reputation. His wife is a fine and spirited woman. She will take this bravely, but I shouldn't want to be the one to tell her."

"Hysterical," asked Stone. "No," said rather dramatically. She'll rave around like a madwoman. Sincere enough, you understand, but expressed blatantly. Then there's Jane Holt, my nephew's fiancée. And her father, I'm not shirking, but perhaps you or Demarest could tell some of them."

"Or you brother."

"No, I'll do it before I'll foist it on poor Dan. After the excitement is over, and things are settled down, that chap will collapse. I know him. He's as brave as they come, but he won't realize how his life is broken up until his duties are done and he has time to think."

"Will he be very keen to discover the killer?" Stone asked.

"Yes, but he'll have to be prodded a little. I'm sure he'll just settle down to his sorrow and loss, unless he is urged to be active in the investigation. After all, is there much he can do?"

"That remains to be seen. Let us go back now. That Demarest is a capable chap. He says there'll be an inquest."

"Held by whom?"

"The county coroner. His action, of course, would not be binding on the federal authorities, but it may help matters along. The yacht, with all its equipment and fittings, is in the custody of the coast guard until its final disposition. It will be returned eventually to Barry Wayne's estate, but there will be delay."

"And when will the bodies be given over to us?"

"After the inquest. Then the real investigation will begin. I shall be on the case, but it will be in the hands of the department of justice. I may be of help, for while the coast guard enforces more laws on the water now than formerly, it does not maintain any highly organized criminal investigative agency. So my long experience in detective work may be of use. And, too, now that we learn the home port of the yacht in Nantucket, that may mean changes in procedure."

The two men went back to the office of the United States attorney, to find the inquest was just being opened.

The coroner was a brisk, busy little man, who seemed to think this case unimportant and of little interest. How mistaken his opinion was; later this was to be a source of deep regret to him.

He first mentioned Captain Gregg, who gave a succinct account of his seeing the derelict, investigating in and notifying the coast guard.

Fleming Stone was called next. He told all the facts he knew, expressing no opinions, though urged to do so. Instead, he inquired what the reports from the autopsy had been.

Dr. Blaine, who had conducted the post mortem replied to this.

"Regarding the death of Mr. Wayne," he began, "there is no doubt that he was hit a fatal blow by some one desiring his death. There is no record of an accident and he could not possibly have struck the blow himself. A heavy instrument was used, which I understand, has been found."

As to the other dead man, Mr. Van Zandt, he found no indication of anything but a natural death. The man had a bad case of ulcers of the stomach, a dread disease. It had reached a stage where death must ensue soon, and he could not have lived another 24 hours."

"And there was no sign of poisoning," the coroner inquired.

"None other than the poison of the disease itself. It is a terrible malady."

"How long had these men been dead?"

"That question is always difficult to answer, and especially so in this case, as the bodies had been exposed to the weather for many hours. If obliged to express an opinion, I should say anywhere from 15 to 20 hours. But this is mere surmise. Mr. Wayne tells us they left the Nantucket Yacht Club some time after 9 o'clock yesterday morning. I should say their death occurred pretty soon after starting; but I cannot be positive. Also, I have no reason to think that they died of the same cause, for yet no reason to think otherwise. As to the presence of a third person on the yacht, I am not qualified to say. But, so far as I can see, Mr. Wayne was most surely the man who was killed, and he could not have lived another 24 hours."

English men of fashion two centuries ago wore wigs of many shapes. The wigs were thickly powdered, and sometimes a wig had a long braid which hung down the back as a "pig-tail." Other wigs had two or three braids hanging down the back. Some dandies wore wigs with curls eight or ten inches long hanging over either cheek and reaching to the chest. Among the names of different kinds of wigs were comet, Grecian fly, spinach seed and pigeon's wing.

In small towns and country places in England, the wig-wearing custom was not popular; but men let their hair grow long enough to wear it in a "bob."

Breeches which reached to the knees, or almost to the knees, were in style. Some of these had silver buckles at the knees. Long stockings were worn, with low shoes or slippers. The coats were fancy, and reached well below the waist sometimes as far down as the knees; but they were open enough at the front to display the waistcoat and other parts, tied in large bows about the neck, came into favor. Many men carried muffs, not only for vain show, but to keep their hands warm.

Women in England were in the habit of wearing canvas petticoats made stiff and bulging with whalebone. These turned into the famed "hooped skirts."

The ladies also wore shoes with high red heels, and carried walking sticks.

Fashions in France were, in large part, like those of England. Indeed France was a fashion center from which many, if not most, of England's styles were drawn.

The custom of women placing patches, that is "hand-made beauty spots," on their faces was in favor in France as well as in England.

The skirts of French women kept growing and growing in bulging size, and they brought forth complaints from men.

"What do you know, ladies," wrote one Frenchman, "what evil genius has taken hold of you. You try to pass yourselves off as spiritual and devout while you are loading with a huge framework to hold out your dress."

"Your dress takes up the room of at least six persons. In passing along, you have to hold up your skirt with both hands, and you display the wooden hoops under it."

By G. A. PHILLIPS.

NEW YORK, April 16.—(AP)—The bond market succeeded in weathering another sinking spell in railroad loans today and higher under encouragement of utilities and industrial.

United States governments also showed improvement.

Transfers were again somewhat below the average, however, aggregating $9,450,000 par value, compared with $9,487,000 on Monday, and the Associated Press paragraphs were 1 to 4 of a point higher.

Continued accumulation of selected utility issues coincided with the transfer of hearings on the Wheeler-Rayburn holding bill from the house to the senate yesterday. Among the favorites and renewed predictions by leaders of the industry that the measure would undergo radical change before the final vote were heard.

Particular bright utility spots were North American 5s at 97 3/4 points; Columbia Gas & Electric 5s, up 1 3/8 at 84 7/8; and North American Edison 5 1/2s, up 2 at 86.

A feature of the market that caused comment in investment circles was the tendency of non-callable high-priced bonds to blossom out under the most active demand observed in several days.

Among the so-called "blue chip" issues selling higher were Liggett & Myers 5s, up 1 point at 121 1/2; Illinois Steel debenture 4 1/2s, up 1/2 at 107 3/4; and Santa Fe 4s, up 3/8 at 100 1/8.

Selected industrial bonds threatened their way into higher territory without any difficulty. Among the favorites were Chile Copper 5s at 91, United States Rubber 5s at 93 1/8, and American Smelting 5s at 102 1/4 and Youngtown Sheet & Tube 5s at 93 1/8.

Railroad bonds remained under the spell of random profit-taking and developed considerable irregularity in forenoon trading only to stiffen up when the senate passed the Eastman bill providing regulation for motor buses and trucks operating in interstate commerce. Closing prices of leaders were somewhat mixed. Federal gains were made by obligations of Baltimore & Ohio, Delaware & Hudson, New York Central and New Haven and Southern Railway.

The new Treasury 7 1/8s again were the most active in the government group and ended 2 3/8 higher at 101 1/2.

A uniform upward swing in obligations of the Argentine government featured the foreign department. Trading in European bonds was concentrated largely in Italian 7s and some of the German provinces, most of which ended a point or so better. Direct obligations of the German government, however, slipped backward.

WHEAT & CORN
MAKE WIDE GAINS

NEW YORK, April 16.—(AP)—Wheat and corn futures made wide gains today, with wheat up 1 1/2 cents and corn up 1/2 cent.

Wheat futures were up 1 1/2 cents to 1.12 1/2, while corn futures were up 1/2 cent to 44 1/2.

The gains were attributed to reports of a shortage of grain in the northwestern United States.
